

LOADING TRUCKS

Elliot works for the Red Cross and is coordinating relief efforts in New Orleans. He's looking at his work sheet this morning, he has a lot of pickups to get ready for the trucks.

The odd thing about today's work schedule is that all of the trucks scheduled for pickups are from independent trucking companies instead of the large trucking companies who handled the bulk of their shipping. Shrugging, he hurries off to get the scheduled goods ready for shipment.

From this information and the clues provided, determine each driver, the type of goods they are picking up, and the driver's final destination.
