- a. CCEH is a membership organization focused on the crisis side of housing.
- b. “Reaching Home” is a campaign active at the State Capitol that calls to increase funding to those working on the front lines to prevent homelessness and that the people in these positions are essential workers.
- c. They have also introduced a bill that declares housing as a basic right at the state level, making CT the first state to do so.
- d. There is a pilot program in place in CT that would help teens who are unhoused/unsheltered or have unstable housing.
- e. Best ways to get help is to call 2-1-1 in CT, or reach out to your local Community Access Network (CAN). For Tolland and Windham counties, this is the Access Community Action Agency located at 1315 Main St in Willimantic, (860) 450-7400. They can help with Rapid Rehousing, youth homelessness, and homelessness diversion.
- f. Shamim Patwa, Mansfield’s McKinney Vento Liaison, noted that schools could be more proactive to educate staff on what to look for to help families avoid homelessness. In most cases, they find out after a family has been displaced.
- g. Mr. Asikainen stated that the best way to be proactive is to share this information with the students. He has seen that they sometimes know more about family situations and kids trust each other more.
